General Terms and Conditions

1. An "advertising order" in the sense of the following agreements is the contract between the publishing house and the advertiser about the publication of one or several advertisements or other advertising material (hereinafter referred to as "advertisements") of advertisers or other advertising space buyers (hereinafter referred to as "advertisers") in a newspaper or magazine publication for the purpose of circulation.
2. A "trade" is a contract about the publication of several advertisements under recognition of the rebates that can be given to the advertiser according to the price list, with the publication taking place on advertiser's demand. Rebates shall not be granted to those companies whose business purpose, among others, consists of issuing advertising orders for various advertisers, in order to put forward a joint rebate claim. If the right to call for individual advertisements is reserved in the context of closing, the order shall expire within one year after the appearance of the first advertisement, as long as the first advertisement is called for and published within a year after the contract has been made. If an order is not filled for reasons that are not the fault of the publishing house, the Ordering Party, notwithstanding additional legal obligations, shall pay the publishing house the difference between the promised discount and the discount corresponding to the actual purchase. The Ordering Party has, when not otherwise agreed upon, the right to claim a corresponding discount on the actual purchase of advertisements within one year.
4. Orders for advertisements which are expressly to be published solely in certain numbers, certain issues and certain places in the printed publication must be received by the publisher so far in advance that the Ordering Party can be informed prior to completion if the order cannot be executed in this manner. Rubricated advertisements shall be printed in the respective column, and do not require an express agreement to this effect.
5. Text advertisements are advertisements bordering text on at least three sides and not on other advertisements. Text advertisements that are not recognizable as advertisements due to their layout shall be clearly labeled as publicity by the publishing house.
6. The publisher reserves the right to reject advertisements - as well as individual placements as part of a standing order - if
 - the contents of these violates laws or official stipulations or
 - the content of these was considered objectionable by the German Press or Advertising Council in a complaints procedure
 - their publication is not acceptable for the publisher because of the content, the design or the layout, the origin or the technical form or
 - these advertisements contain the advertisement of or for third partiesAdvertising supplement orders are not binding for the Publisher until a sample of the advertising supplement has been submitted and approved. Advertising Media containing the promotional material of or for third parties (umbrella advertising) require in each individual case the specific prior written approval of the Publishing House. This entitles the publishing house to charge a combined surcharge. If the posting of an advertisement medium is partially or fully prohibited the advertiser will be informed immediately.
7. The Customer shall be solely responsible for the timely delivery and impeccable condition of suitable artwork and other Advertising Media. The Advertiser is obliged to provide the Publisher with correct advertising material, particularly with regard to the format or the technical specifications as designated by the Publisher in good time prior to the begin of the advertising campaign. The Customer shall bear any and all costs incurred by the Publishing House as a result of changes to the Advertising Media requested by the Customer or attributable to the Customer. Agreed upon is the general quality of the advertisement due to the possibilities of the print layouts and the technology used by the printing company for the proven print according to statements in the price list. This applies only in the event that the client complies with the specifications of the publisher for production and delivery of print materials.
8. Printing material will only be returned at the express demand of the orderer. The obligation to preserve the copy ceases three months after the purchase order has taken its course.
9. If the publication of the advertisement does not conform to the contractually owed quality, the Client has the right to reduce the agreed remuneration or to the publication of a substitute advertisement of impeccable quality, however, only to the extent to which the purpose of the advertisement was impaired. The publisher has the right to refuse advertising or publication if
 - performance requires expenditure which, having regard to the subject matter of the obligation and the principle of good faith, is manifestly disproportionate to the obligee's interest in performance or
 - if his can only be carried out with disproportionate costs for the publishing house
 - if the publisher does not comply with a reasonable deadline set for the replacement advertisement or other advertising materials or if the substitute advertisement is not flawless again, the advertiser shall have the right to reduction of payment. In the case of minor defects, the customer shall not be entitled to cancel the order. Complaints in case of unapparent deficiencies have to be put forward within a year from the beginning of the legal statutory limitation. The publisher is liable for all damages no matter whether from a violation of contractual obligations or from unlawful acts according to the following terms:
 - In the event of gross negligence, the liability in commercial trading is limited to compensation for the typically foreseeable damage; this limitation does not apply if the damage was caused by a legal representative or a manager of the publishing house.
 - In case of ordinary negligence, the publisher is only liable if an essential contractual obligation was violated. In this case liability is however limited to typical foreseeable damages.
 - In the event of claims based on product liability regulations, or in the event of an injury to life, body or health, the publisher is liable according to the legal regulations.Complaints have to be asserted within four weeks after receiving the invoice and document. Generally the publisher is only liable for the amount of the advertisement price concerned. All claims against the publisher deriving from contractual violation of duty expire after one year after the legal beginning of the statutory limitation if they are not based on intentional behavior.
10. Proofs are supplied upon express request only. The client will bear the responsibility for the correctness of the proofs that have been sent back. The publishing house shall include all corrections of errors that it is notified of within the period of time set when sending the proof.
11. Unless special regulations apply with respect to dimensions, the actual advertisement height that is usual for the type of advertisement shall be used as the basis for invoicing.
12. The invoice shall be paid within the period as indicated in the price list, unless a different payment period or prepayment has been agreed upon in individual cases. Any discounts for premature payments are granted in accordance with the price list.
13. Delayed or deferred payment will be charged with the usual interest rates for overdraft credits. In the event of payment default, the Publisher may suspend the further execution of the current order until payment is received and may demand prepayment for the remaining advertisements. Where there are justified doubts regarding the solvency of the customer, the publisher is entitled, also during the term of an advertising order, to make the publication of further advertisements contingent on the payment of all unpaid amounts and the pre-payment of all remaining advertisements, irrespective of any payment conditions originally agreed upon.
14. On request, the publisher will supply a voucher copy of the advertisement. Depending on the kind and scope of the advertisement order, pages, cuttings or full voucher copies will be supplied. In the event that a voucher copy cannot be supplied, then a legally binding certificate from the publisher regarding the publication and distribution of the advertisement will be provided in its place.
15. If the print run is reduced, a claim for a reduction in the rate can be derived if the print run assured in the price list or otherwise has been undercut by more than 30%.
16. The publisher's business address is the place of fulfillment. The place of jurisdiction for entities other than business people shall be their place of residence. In commerce with traders, legal entities under public law or separate estates under public law, the court of competent jurisdiction for complaints shall be the publisher's business address. If the publisher's claims cannot be satisfied by issuing payment reminders, the place of jurisdiction for disputes with non-commercial clients is determined by the place of residence of the latter. If the place of residence or the usual abode of the Advertiser, including private persons, at the time of raising a claim is unknown, or if the Advertiser has moved his residence or usual place of abode out of the area of jurisdiction, then the court of competent jurisdiction for complaints shall be the publisher's business address.
17. Advertising agencies and advertising agents will be obliged to comply with the publisher's rate card in all their proposals, contracts and settlements with advertisers.
18. Price changes in respect of orders already awarded can be applied to companies if the publisher has notified them thereof at least one month before publication of the advertising material. If the publishing company increases its prices, the customer shall have the right to withdraw from the contract. The right to withdraw must be exercised within 14 days of receipt of the notification concerning the increase in price.
19. Advertisers warrant that they possess any and all rights required for the placement of advertisements and that they do not infringe the rights of third parties (in particular industrial property rights, copyrights, personal rights, etc) or other statutory provisions. The advertiser bears sole responsibility for the content and legal admissibility of the text and graphic materials made available for the insertion. The Advertiser indemnifies the publisher within the framework of the advertising order/contract from all claims brought by third parties that could arise from the infringement of legal provisions. Moreover, the advertiser shall indemnify the Publishing House from any costs of necessary legal representation. The advertiser is obliged to support the publishing house in good faith with information and documents in its legal defense against third parties and give written notification. To the extent in time, volume and content necessary for the execution of the advertising order, the advertiser transfers to the publishing house all the required copyrights, rights of use and ancillary copyrights required for the use of the advertisements in online media of all kinds, including the Internet, including especially the right to copy, transfer, transmit, process, read and download from a database. The above rights are transferred spatially unlimited in all cases.
20. In case of equipment failures or force majeure, illegal industrial conflict, illegal attachment, traffic disruption, general scarcity of raw materials or energy and similar happenings - in both the publisher's establishment and/ or external businesses used by the publisher for fulfillment of its obligations - the publisher is entitled to demand full payment for the published advertisements provided that 70 % of the guaranteed circulation (or in case of lack of a guaranteed circulation the normally sold circulation) of the publisher's publication has been distributed.

- § 15. Basically it is possible to make special arrangements that need to be in written form without exception.
- § 16. Subject of a separate agreement may be the vote of a longer lease and pick-up time and / or special regulations for product return.
- § 18. These additions to the terms and conditions of the Michael E. Brieden Verlag GmbH will apply from September 01, 2012.
